Old Settler's Pork Chop Grill Master

If you don't like enclosed spaces, pork chop grilling may be a good job for you. The pork chops are grilled outside the tent, both for space concerns but also to help loft that wonderful smell out into the public for free advertising. If you have not ever had a pork chop sandwich you are missing out, the IGA does a great job getting us quality chops and our team does a great job cooking them to perfection. In 2017 as a reference we sold over 850 pork chops and it helped us rise over $3,500 dollars for St. Mary's, this job is important but also one we can do with usually just one grill master. There would likely be 15 or so spots to be filled for this outside, free roaming roll. As mentioned the grills for cooking the pork chops are outside, so this roll will require you to be out in the sun with some walking back and forth into the tent to deliver the fresh grilled chops to the front line. The pork chops are not hard to grill; we start with a hot grill, pull out the chop, add a healthy amount of seasoning and then toss it on the grill. Patience is key for the next part, we don't flip the chops until we see some white bubbling up on the top of the chop and then when flip it, wait a bit more and done. This item is popular more during the evening shifts, so if you like a rush, you may want to sign up for those slots. We can easily have 20+ chops cooking at once at time to keep up with the demand. As always, please mark June 22-26 on your calendar, and if you like being outside a bit more, enjoy grilling and don't mind a bit of walking back and forth this could be a spot to try. Also, this is one of the pure grill only jobs, as the chops don't get put in a bun and wrapped until we get an order to avoid having soggy buns. Some fun statistics, we sell 4.25 pork chops for each chilidog we sell. Our record for chop sales per hour is 80, with the average being closer to 32.7 per hour.
